CONTEXT

In the framework of the "16 Days of Activism Against Violence Against Women" themed "From Peace to the House to Peace in the World: An Education for All", West Africa Democracy Radio was appointed by the West and Central Africa Regional Gender Thematic Group (WCA-RGTG) of the United Nations to:

- Produce a series of daily radio shows through the whole 16 days of campaign (from 25 November to 10 December 2016). These radio shows aim at disseminating and amplifying key messages of “16 days of activism against violence against women”, specifically on “a safe education for all”;
- Produce two live debates, one during the launch of the campaign, on 25 November 2016; the second one, on the closing of the “16 days of activism against violence against women”, on 10 December 2016;
- Contribute to the achievement of expected results during the campaign, especially in terms of mobilization/commitment of actors; to raise awareness among the general public, to the national level and to international level on the achievements and perspectives of the fight against violence against women.

METHODOLOGIES

To achieve the mission, according to the concept note created ad hoc, WADR produced and broadcast the radio shows – on its website, within its network of partner radios – in accordance with the prescriptions and to the agenda of events provided by the UN West and Central Africa Regional Gender Thematic Group.

Below, the productions are listed, as well as the summaries. There are also the hyperlinks to the radio shows (please click on it to access to the podcasts) and the list of partner radios that have also broadcast the productions in their respective countries.
16 days of activism: the Radio Shows

25 November 2016

Summary of the launching day of the campaign

Synopsis
On Friday, 25 November 2016, Senegal, alongside the international community, launched a 16 days of activism campaign against gender based violence. Organized by the Ministry of Women, Family and the Child, the ceremony gathered partners of the United Nations system, led by UN Women.

The civil society organizations working for the respect of human rights were also present. All these actors are engaged in uniting their efforts for an increased awareness on the wrongdoings of violence against women.
The event took place in Dakar.

West Africa Democracy Radio, partner of the event, presents you a summary of the launching ceremony of the national campaign of the 16 days of activism against violence against women in Senegal.

Education and Justice for all genders: consequences of structural discrimination towards women and young girls

Synopsis
WADR presents two interviews providing an analysis of challenges within two structures, namely school and society, regarding structural discrimination towards women and young girls.

The exchanges identified a number of practices, such as early marriage and early maternity, and other phenomena such as sexual violence and sexual harassment, and their corollary - the exclusion of pregnant girls from the school system, as sources of school failure for women and girls.

Speakers

- Nicolas Reuge, Advisor at the UNICEF Regional Office for West and Central Africa;
- Alassane Mbengue, Education Inspector and Secretary General of the Matam Academy Inspectorate.

27 November 2016

Role of women in peace negotiations, peacebuilding, diplomacy and decision-making

Synopsis

The general context in West Africa remains tense. Violent extremism, electoral processes, migrations, social inequalities, natural disasters and other unequal distributions of national wealth have destabilized peace in the region. Governments, civil society, NGOs and partners are doing their best to peacefully resolve ongoing conflicts, yet instabilities and socio-economic challenges remain.

What if women were effectively and fully involved in conflict resolution in accordance with United Nations Resolution 1325 adopted in 2000? This resolution recommends the participation of women in all aspects related to peace keeping, the peace process, and peace consolidation.

Speakers

- Agathe Télou Kéméalo, Gender Advisor at the United Nations Office for West Africa and the Sahel, and coordinator of the West Africa Gender, Peace, and Security Working Group;
- Christine Mensah-Atoemne, former Minister of Social Action and National Solidarity and former MP of Togo;
- Euphrasia Yao Kouassi, Minister of the Promotion of Women and Family and Child Protection in Côte d'Ivoire;
- Marie Goretti Nduwayo, UN Women Representative, Cote d’Ivoire;
- Mafélina Dosso, Secretary General of the Network on Peace and Security for Women in the ECOWAS Area / Côte d'Ivoire section.

28 November 2016

Prevention and prosecution of sexual and gender-based crime and protection of victims of sexual and gender based violence

Synopsis

As part of West Africa Democracy Radio’s coverage of the 16 days of activism against violence against women, in partnership with the UN, journalist Sheriff Bojang Jr interviews Veronic Wright, Senior Regional Legal Adviser at the UNODC Regional Office for West and Central Africa.

Regarding the prevention and prosecution of sexual and gender-based crime and protection of victims', Ms. Wright, a former prosecutor at the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda dwells on the challenges in investigating and prosecuting cases etc.

Speaker

- Mrs. Veronic Wright, Senior Regional Legal Adviser, UNODC.

HIV/AIDS and GBV (Gender-Based Violence)

Synopsis

In 2015, on a global scale, around 17, 8 million of women (from 15 years old and up) were living with HIV, representing 51% of the adult population with HIV. In 2015, around 900,000 of the 1, 9 million new cases of HIV - 47 % - were women. In Sub-Saharan Africa, 56 % of new HIV infection cases were women. This rate is even higher in young girls between 15 and 24 years old, representing around 66 % of new cases of infection. The same trends, unfavorable for women, are observed in all other parts of the world. Moreover, this situation has direct consequences on development, given the place of women in the economy and the informal sector, especially in rural environments. Despite a notable evolution in this field – people living with HIV/AIDS now have less shame and fear to talk about their status – stigmatization is still a big issue, alongside its corollaries, notably physical, moral, psychic and also financial violence that a person undergoes, mostly the women living with HIV.

Speakers

- Demba Koné, Director of the UNAIDS in Senegal;
- Doctor Francine Ouédraogo, HIV specialist, UNICEF Guinea;
- Tatey Adjoavi Nyuito, executive director of the NGO ALAFIA.

Denial of education to girls stigmatized for sexual violence

Synopsis
In this production, the debates revolved around the forms of sexual violence encountered in schools, theirs causes and the perpetrators, as well as the correlation that can exist between this type of violence and drop-out rates of young girls.

From the discussions, it emerged that, while the link between the academic failures of girls who have experienced sexual violence and the sexual violence in question is not clear, the impact on access and retention of these girls, victims of sexual abuse, is real. Action levers have been identified to combat this phenomenon.

Speakers
• Marema Touré Thiam, Chief, Social and Human Sciences, UNESCO Regional Office for West Africa (Sahel), Dakar;
• Alpha Ba, researcher and member of Geste;

Violence, maternal health and economic cost of the violence

Synopsis

Violence perpetrated against women has a considerable impact on their lives. Beyond the discriminatory situation that the violence implies, it must be recognized that the health of these women is also threatened by this violence. Women in West and Central Africa suffer from this violence in terms of maternal health and economic power.

Report: Ida Badio, WADR in Togo

- Darius Thieryi, Legal assistant at the GF2D center in Lomé;
- Sophie Agpama, Coordinator ad interim of GF2D.

Interview Kara Thioune

Presence of militarized forces in schools

Synopsis
The use as well as targeting of learning facilities especially in conflict zones has become increasingly alarming. In regions like Nigeria’s northeast where the jihadist group Boko Haram is waging a war to create an Islamic caliphate, school buildings have been destroyed, students kidnapped or in some instances killed. As the world observes 16 days of activism, the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF) has reminded governments who have signed up to the Safe Schools Declaration about their obligation to protect schools in times of conflict. The Safe Schools Declaration is an inter-governmental political commitment that was opened for endorsement by countries at an international conference held in Oslo, Norway in May 2015.
The Declaration provides countries the opportunity to express political support for the protection of students, teachers, and schools during times of armed conflict. To dwell more on the theme “Focus on schools and protecting schools from attack and militarization”, Francesca Bonomo, UNICEF’s Education in emergencies Specialist for West and Central Africa spoke to WADR’s Adolphus Mawolo.

Speaker

- Francesca Bonomo, Education Specialist in emergency situations in the UNICEF Regional Office for West and Central Africa

6 December 2016

Sexual aggressions in schools

Synopsis

In schools, girls are sometimes subjected to blackmail in order to abuse them. Sometimes physical force is used to pressure them to accept abuse. These sexual assaults are one of the factors behind school dropout, causing girls great harm, including early and unwanted pregnancies and serious illnesses. Their aggressors are not always denounced. The victims, in the end, pay the high price.

Speakers

- Xavier Hospital, Regional Advisor for Education in HIV/ Health and Well-being in the UNESCO Regional Office for West Africa (Sahel), Dakar;

Report: Euloge Aidasso of WADR in Bénin

- Fano Ako, School Director in Ouagadougou.

• Moukhtar Mbengue, Inspector of Matam Academy in Senegal.

7 December 2016
Sexual violence committed with impunity against young girls

Synopsis
Many young girls are exposed to all forms of violence. The most well-known is sexual violence. This can happen in their everyday environment, either by family or an outsider. But what is very often deplorable is that the perpetrators of these sexual assaults are not always denounced because of the guilty silence of the relatives of the victim or the community.

Speakers:
• Catherine Andela, International Advisor on Gender based violence issues
8 December 2016

Vulnerability of young girls and boys with no access to education in refugee camps and of displaced persons

Synopsis
In West and Central Africa, armed conflicts have pushed millions of people out of their homes. Some are internally displaced and some are refugees in other countries. Many children and young women and men are part of the lot, in some cases more than 50%. They face many problems in refugee and IDP camps, one of the most critical of which is their vulnerability due to lack of education. Two special reports cover this issue. One presents the situation in IDP camps in Diffa, Niger. The other provides information about these young people forced to flee their villages often attacked by the jihadists of the liberation front of Macina in the center of Mali in order to attend school in urban areas.

Speaker
- Caroline Schmidt, Education Officer in West and Central Africa at the Regional Office of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, presents the issues;
- Pauline Birot, Project officer mental health and psychosocial unit, IOM.

9 December 2016

UN Plan of action on the safety of journalists and the issue of impunity, women journalists and gender-based violence in the field

Synopsis
In West and Central Africa, as in many other parts of the world, women journalists encounter gender specific challenges when working in the field. They are often subjected to various forms of degrading treatment and violence ranging from the most direct to the most insidious. Moreover, the media often contributes in a conscious or unconscious way to gender bias in the newsrooms and in local content. This issue is discussed with Sasha Rubel Diamanka, Regional Adviser for Communication and Information at UNESCO's Regional Office for West Africa and Eugenie Aw, former Director of the Center for Science and Technology Studies The information (CESTI) of Dakar, journalist and trainer on gender issues.
Speakers
